

- Open Access
- Quarterly publication
- First publication, March 2023
- Founding Editor-in-Chief: Richard Crocombe, Ph.D.

What is Practica?

Applied Spectroscopy – Practica focuses on the publication of practical applications of a previously developed field or theory. Papers from all fields that use spectroscopy may be considered for publication.

Who should publish in Practica?

Researchers, scientists, and technicians from companies, universities, and labs doing developing and deploying spectroscopic applications.

Is Practica peer reviewed?

Yes, all submissions to Applied Spectroscopy – Practica are subject to the full peer-review process.

How can I publish in Practica?

Check <https://www.s-a-s.org> and follow our social media for announcements on the call for papers.

How can I get Practica?

Applied Spectroscopy – Practica will be available through your journal subscription service, Google Scholar and search, the SAS/Sage websites, and via electronic book delivered quarterly.

What is the anticipated readership of Practica?

Applied Spectroscopy – Practica will be distributed to over 5,000 unique readers via direct email and over 8,000 other institutions.

Sign up for Practica news at s-a-s.org

